FITZGERALD'S ATTITUDE TOWARD GOVERNORSHIP

Following a conference with some of his personal and political friends at Falmouth yesterday, the report was spread to-day that Mayor John F. Fitzgerald was an outspoken and aggressive candidate for the nomination for Governor at the next Democratic State Convention.

This is a misconception of the Mayor's attitude. Contingencies might arise under which he would accept the nomination, but he declared to-day that he was not seeking it.

Mayor Fitzgerald said to-day to the BOSTON AMERICAN:

"To say that I have made a move to secure the nomination for Governor is ridiculous. I have not done so."

"All that I care to say is that the situation regarding the Democratic party in this State at this time is satisfactory. The convention will nominate the strongest man."

"As far as I am concerned, I am busy with the affairs of the city. They are keeping me busy."

"I and some of my friends talked many matters over yesterday, and we all agreed that things were working along harmoniously for the good of the party in this State."

Rich Mr. Rosenheimer Appears to Be a Murderer

Why Should His Treatment Differ from That of Any Other Murderer? What Right Has He to Go Free on Bail? The Case Against Him Is One of MURDER, Aggravated by COWARDICE.

This is the story of E. T. Rosenheimer, a very rich man, arrested in the city of New York for killing a young girl with his automobile. The girl, Grace Hough, was riding in a buggy. Rosenheimer, driving his automobile at high speed, ran into the buggy, killed Grace Hough, injured a girl who was with her, and then, like a coward, put on full speed to escape responsibility.

Rosenheimer was seen some distance away from the scene of the collision. When he was arrested he denied all knowledge of the crime of which he was guilty, and an individual with him, a certain Minton Fleisher, lied most volubly under oath before the coroner.

It was made perfectly clear, however, by the conditions of the auto, which showed the marks of the collision, and by the testimony of John Deans, chauffeur of another car, who swore that he had seen Rosenheimer and his friend to glib in perjury deliberately run away after they had murdered the girl.

The Boston American wonders why this prosperous killer should have been permitted to go free on bail—even on $25,000 bail.

Under the law a man accused of murder on good evidence is not entitled to his liberty under ANY circumstances.

The fact that a man happens to be worth a million or more should make no difference.

The killing of that girl, the result of reckless driving, original violation of law, and the cowardly running away to escape consequences, was just as much a murder as though the girl had been killed by a bludgeon in the hands of some thug.

The place for Mr. Rosenheimer and for his perjured friend, who seems to have been an accessory to the crime, IS IN JAIL AND NOT OUT ON BAIL.

There should be a speedy trial, and Rosenheimer, of whose guilt, according to testimony, there can be no reasonable doubt, should be made to realize that murder is murder, regardless of the prosperity of the man who commits murder, and regardless of the weapon with which the murder was committed, whether it be a twenty-five cent blackjack or a five thousand dollar automobile.

The fact that the man ran away indicated full consciousness of guilt on his part. That should be made clear to the jury, and doubtless the judge will MAKE it clear. That running away WAS CONFESSION OF GUILT.

And the vile cowardice that the man showed, abandoning those whom he had injured, instead of going to their assistance, will deprive him of all sympathy in the minds of the jury.

Under the law the man probably cannot be convicted of murder in the first degree—although it is a crime just as vile and as heartless as that of any burglar who commits murder while violating the law, although he may not originally have intended to commit murder.

Not less than twenty-five years in prison at hard labor would be surely a minimum punishment for Mr. Rosenheimer, the runaway murderer.

And whatever penalty can be inflicted upon his associate accessory, and willing perjurer, should be inflicted upon that individual, to make him realize that defending murder and cowardice with perjury is not safe.

There is one reckless automobile driver now in jail serving a seven years' sentence for committing murder with an automobile.

He was simply a chauffeur working for hire.

This millionaire gentleman, who first committed his murder and then ran away like a coward, doubtless will get such a sentence as will impress others of his type—if there are any others.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

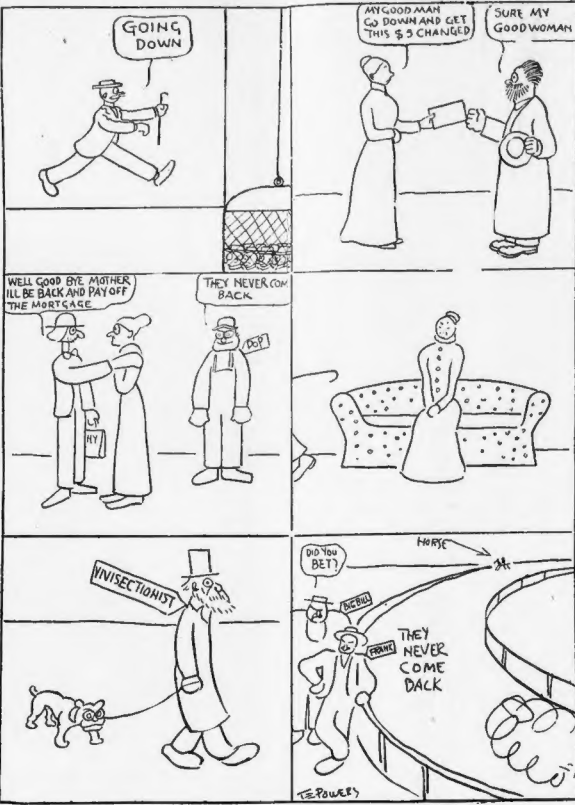

ALL BORN TO BE RICH Editor BOSTON AMERICAN: Believing you to be sincere in your desire to find out what is the policy of the State of New York in the case of the Rosenheimers, I thought I would write you my feelings on the subject. I can not believe God or Nature ever intended that any child should be poor. We were all born to be rich, and it is up to each individual to secure those things which will enable him to reach the goal of affluence. It is the duty of every citizen to do his duty to distribute those riches. Every man has a duty to perform, and it is his duty to distribute those riches. Every man has a duty to perform, and it is his duty to distribute those riches. Every man has a duty to perform, and it is his duty to distribute those riches.

Fraudulent Co-operation

By MILO HASTINGS

There are always individuals ready to turn to their own private advantage anything which is worthy of the public good. Judge Lindsay, of Denver, has shown how the politicians of Colorado attempted to utilize his well-earned popularity to gain votes for the machine. "Solely" for the sake of the machine, he was the betterment of his city and state. The corrupt politicians worried appropriate these energies and his enviable reputation to the service of the grafting corporations. This is a very real danger to the very common. The chief stock in trade of many capitalists is the ability to turn to their own selfish ends that which others have created.

Rise of a New Politics

By CHARLES FERGUSON

It is time to call attention to the fact that the climate of American politics has recently undergone a great change. The change is due to the discovery that politics is a much more serious business than people generally have been brought up to suppose. Sensible men everywhere are awakening to the idea that the government is a big business—that it is their business, and that their hope of making an honest living depends very largely upon their ability to maintain an honest government. This is a new idea. The fathers of the present voting generation thought of politics as a great game, a very interesting game, something exciting and even dangerous—a game in which the stakes were often high and the losses were often large. They did not realize that their living was at stake. They had no experience of the power of corrupt politics to create gigantic agencies of extortion to tax the very life out of a nation.

Household Economy

By CHESTER FIRKINS

I USED to get enough to eat before my venture paid. Enough to live on East street and have a kitchen maid. I began my cherished wish would cook. This I like an informed girl. But now she says, with warning look: "Save something for the girl!" I used to keep my happy place with everything in sight. The final piece of pie I ate with fearless appetite. But now, whenever a dinner comes, With spicy smoke a-urt. I must divide the bite and crumbs—Save something for the girl!

A Few Paraphrases

By WEX JONES

LOWLY England's arm, doesn't really belong to England, although the English think it was so. It was really the hand of a man who was touched a man with weary footprints and a gift with floating hair, the floating hair indicating that the hair came from the scalp which it decorated. The girl's hair was white from her struggle to get to 'Curfew' on time. "Bonds," calmly said the sexton, "I've ruled that there be for years and years and years to collect my fifty cents and five out of tinuous and I'll have to make it up as usual. Curfew, girl, must ring tonight!"
